Korobochka (コロボ) @cirnosad

Mar 25, 2025 · 9 tweets · cirnosad/status/1904669033255100587

US wins because it protects its allies territory like it was its own.
The "good guys" lost because they abandoned or betrayed each other.

The consequences for Syria's destruction are being felt right now, but the history books will regard it as a coup de grâce. /

Middle East Forum

The Fall of Syria Further Proves Iran Can't Sustain Its Allies

When Hay'at Tahrir Al-Sham Began Its Attacks on the Assad Regime in Aleppo, Iran's IRGC Essentially Stood Down

March 25, 2025 • Hussain Ehsani

The national flags of Syria and Iran. Shutterstock

On May 3, 2024, Javad Zarif, the former foreign minister of Iran, argued that Israel has not been faithful to its allies since its independence. "Israel does not support anyone in its history," he declared.

Latest

MIDDLE EAST FORUM OBSI

Khamenei Confirms: A Nuclear Breakout Is a I Political, Not Religious Decision

March 24, 2025 · Wahied Wah

MIDDLE EAST FORUM ONLI

In a World of Carnivor Herbivores Do Not Far

March 23, 2025 · Giulio Meotti

MIDDLE EAST FORUM ONLI

Erdoğan's Arrest of Ist Mayor Mimics the Iran Model

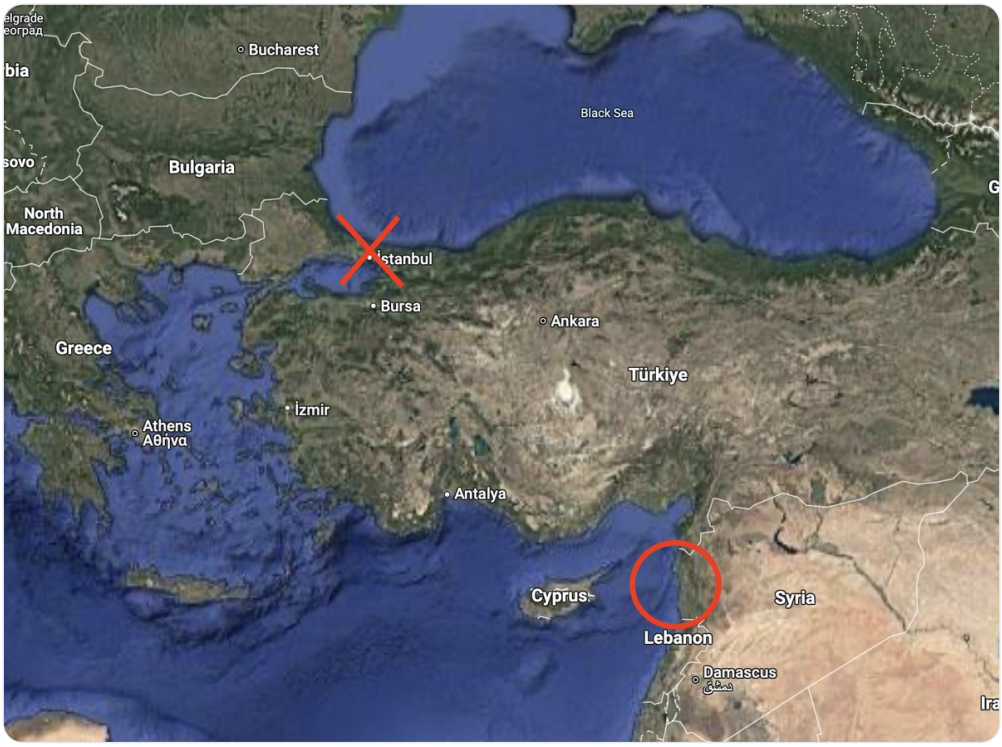
March 23, 2025 · Abdullah Boz

The US spent literal trillions of its money and its allies money on the destruction of Syria. It wasn't a nice to have but an essential move.

Now Iran's missile bases are continually within tactical firing range.
There's no Syrian army or air defense force anymore.

Now Tartous and Hamimeh only exist at the pleasure of Turkey which controls the air, sea and now access to them. Turkey being a NATO member means these essential bases only exist as a curiosity and will never be able to even defend themselves in case of war.

Look at Engels too.



With Syria gone, Russia can forget about any third party agreements (from the perspective of the US not being a participant). CSTO was already on its last legs, but with everyone observing how Russia failed to uphold its obligations in Astana, who would sign agreements with it?

Syria was a cultural strength for Russia and could have been a beachhead to finally get Islam under control. There were many competing ideologies for mainline Sunni Islam, but Syria was an exception -- here you had the closest thing to European/western society and now it is gone.

The worst of the worst consequences for Europe, Russia and Iran will be Syria as a tipping point for Central Asian/Turkic power.
The Mongol horde is now on everyone's door steps! These high TFR beasts will now create cells that will make Crocus/trucks of peace a daily occurrence.

With this Turkic ideology swinging against them, and Russia/Iran drowning in the folly of feminism, it won't be long until places like Chechenya break off, Azerbaijan locks Armenia out of access to Iran, Azeris start breaking off from Iran and so on.
Checkmate and game over. /End

Addendum: With Syria gone, Israel can expand and capture multiple Gazas, Lebanons and Palestines all over the middle east.

These wars are now entirely meaningless. The Iranian ideology is now a joke.

now, land access*

• • •